Research In Progress

Dissertation: On Gender Normativity and Normative Social Roles. Feminist accounts of gender norms are often understood by both sides to be in tension with lived normative experiences of trans and gender-nonconforming people. I explain and defend my view, Traits Ascriptivism, as a theoretically elaborate account of gender norms which draws on metaethics, feminist metaphysics, queer theory, and trans philosophy to respect both feminist concerns and trans and gender-nonconforming lived experience.

Paper: "Inside and Out: Ascriptivism About Gendered Traits." Under Review.

Paper: "Distorted Identities: Hermeneutical Injustice and Normative Social Roles." Draft.

Paper: "Authenticity and Gender Norms." Draft.
